TOPIC 1: VERB TENSES

There are mainly three types of tenses namely; Past Tense, Present Tense and Future Tense.

A. THE PAST TENSE

1. The Past Simple Tense

This tense is used to express actions which took place in the past.

For example:

- 1) I bought this shirt last year.
- 2) I leaved here long time ago.
- 3) I was born in 1970.

It is used in polite requests and to express wishes.

For example:

- 1) I wish I knew where he is.
- 2) I wanted to speak to you.
- 3) Did you want to see him?

It may also be used in conditional clauses (unlikely conditions).

For example:

- 1) If I wrote my father today, he would receive the letter tomorrow.
- 2) I would write to him if I knew his address.
- 3) If he came he would find out the truth of the story.

2. The Past Continuous Tense

This tense is used to show that an activity was happening at a time when another activity occurred.

For example:

- 1) When I was going to school, I met Mr. Gama.
- 2) Was it raining when the accident occurred?
- 3) She ran after me as I was crossing the street.

It may also be used to indicate that a number of activities were taking place at the same time.

For example:

ALL-4-Academics

- 1) James was sewing while Jane was cutting the grass.
- 2) Jimmy was cleaning the window and James was cutting the grass.
- 3) While Jacqueline was ploughing, Jane was milking the cows.

3. The Past Perfect Tense

This tense is used to show that out of two activities which took place in the past, one happened before the other.

For example:

- 1) He had already left when I arrived.
- 2) At six o'clock, he had finished writing letters.
- 3) We came to Malawi because we had heard so much about it

It is also used to indicate the continuation of an activity up to a certain time in the past.

For example:

- 1) I had been in the teaching service for sixteen years by the time Mr. Phiri retired.
- 2) In 1999 Mr. Banda had been in marriage for ten years
- 3) When I first met him, he had lived in Malawi for two years.

4. The Past Perfect Continuous Tense.

This tense is used to indicate that a continuous activity had not been complete before another activity took place at some later period

For example:

- 1) When I came to the school in 2009, Mr. Shawa had been teaching for five years.
- 2) When I first met him, he had been studying for a degree.
- 3) When it started raining, she had been preparing the last bed.

Exercise

Join each pair of sentences to make one sentence. Use a verb in the past continuous tense in the first part of the sentence, followed by a verb in the simple past tense in the second part of the sentence.

For example: He wrote a letter. I saw him.

He was writing a letter when I saw him.

- 1) I worked in the garden. The telephone rang
- 2) The man ran for the bus. He fell down.
- 3) We had supper. He arrived.
- 4) I went to the stadium. I met him.
- 5) The fire burned. I passed the house.

B. THE PRESENT TENSE

1. Simple Present Tense

This tense is used to express the habitual actions.

For example

- 1) They live in Mchinji.
- 2) The girl goes to school at 7:00 a.m.
- 3) John always walks to school.

It is also used to express general truths.

For example:

- 1) The sun rises in the east.
- 2) Water boils at 100° Celsius.
- 3) Oil floats on water.

It may also be used to express a present activity immediately completed.

For example:

- 1) I pronounce you man and wife.
- 2) I declare the meeting open.
- 3) I name this road Chilambula Highway.

It is also used to express future actions which have been decided upon.

For Example:

- 1) School starts on Monday.
- 2) He leaves for London next month.
- 3) Frank goes to Lusaka tomorrow.

2. The Present Continuous Tense

The continuous tense indicates duration. This indicates that the activity is still going on at the time of speaking

For example:

- 1) I am going to school.
- 2) They are singing and dancing.
- 3) The man is working in the garden.

It is also used to express an action which is happening in the near future.

For example:

- 1) I am going home this afternoon.
- 2) What are you waiting for here?
- 3) Where are you spending your next holidays?

3. The Present Perfect Tense

This tense may be used to express an action that has just been completed but which still has current relevance.

For example:

- 1) I have written a letter to my sister.
- 2) I have finished my work.
- 3) He has cut his finger.

4. The Present Perfect Progressive Tense

This tense may be used to indicate the duration of an activity which is still considered incomplete.

For example:

- 1) I have been studying this book for two weeks
- 2) We have been studying French for two years
- 3) She has been waiting to see you for some time.

It may also be used to indicate an activity which is regarded as only recently completed.

For example:

- 1) I have been spending a few days at home.
- 2) These teachers have been attending a refresher course.
- 3) The team has been training hard for the competition.

Exercise

Complete the following sentences by using the present perfect tense form of the verb in brackets.

- a. I (wear) this shirt for two days and I am wearing it now.
- b. The children (be) a sleep for eight hours and they are still sleeping.
- c. John's shoes are very tidy. He (not clean) them for a week.
- d. The thief is in prison. He (be) in prison for five months.
- e. I (eat) nothing for six hours, but I am still not hungry.
- f. The doctor is very busy, and he (not have) a holiday for two years.

Change the following sentences into the present continuous tense.

- a. James walks to school.
- b. It rains.

- c. I write on the chalk board.
- d. They speak to the farmer
- e. The shopkeeper ties up the parcel.

C. THE FUTURE TENSE

1. The Simple Future Tense

This tense is used to indicate future activities.

For example:

- 1) I shall be forty tomorrow.
- 2) The goods will be here in few days.

The simple future tense is also used in the main clause of a conditional sentence (open condition)

For example:

- 1) If you go out in the rain, you will get wet.
- 2) I am sure they will come if you ask them.
- 3) He will lend it to you if you ask him.

2. The Future Continuous Tense

This tense is used to express an activity which will begin before and continue after a given period of time in the future.

For example:

- 1) His friends will be waiting at the bus stop to welcome him.
- 2) We shall be travelling all night.
- 3) After the rain we shall be enjoying the beautiful sunshine.
- 4) They will be expecting us home soon.

3. The Future Perfect tense

It is used to express an activity which will have been completed by a certain time in the future.

For example:

- 1) In 2014, Malawi will have been independent for fifty years.
- 2) I shall have finished this work by four O'clock.
- 3) My brother will have come by the time you arrive.
- 4) By this time next year, Jane will have taken her University Degree.

4. The Future Perfect Progressive Tense

It is used to refer to an activity which extends from the past, through the present into the future.

For example:

ALL-4-Academics

- 1) By the time we arrive he will have been waiting for many hours.
- 2) When Jacqueline gets her degree, she will have been studying at Chancellor College for four years

Exercise

Change the following sentences to the future continuous tense.

- 1) I am walking to school.
- 2) He is feeling excited.
- 3) They are having dinner.
- 4) I am thinking about you.

TOPIC 2: NUMBER AND PERSONS

Number in verbs refers to the form of a verb which indicates whether its subject is singular or plural.

1. A subject in the singular is followed by a verb in singular.

For example:

- a) She was present.
- b) Jane has gone.

2. A subject in the plural is followed by a verb in the plural.

For example:

- a) They were present.
- b) The girls have gone.

3. A verb must agree with its subject in person and number.

For example:

- a) He always works hard.
(Third person singular subject and third person singular verb)

4. When two or more subjects are connected by “and,” the verb is plural.

For example:

- a) John and Jane are pupils.
- b) Joseph and Jessie have already eaten.

5. When two singular nouns are connected by “and” form a unit, or are considered as one thing, the singular verb is used.

For example:

- a) Bread and butter is eaten at most meals.
- b) Cassava and egg is a popular breakfast.

ALL-4-Academics

6. The words “every,” “either,” “neither” “each” are singular and are followed by singular verb.

For example:

- a) Has either of the girls gone?
- b) Neither of the girls has gone.
- c) Each of the pupils was given a book.
- d) Every member of the team is fit.

7. When the word pairs either or neither – nor is used in a sentence the verb agrees with the nearest subject.

For example:

- a) Either you or he is expected to assist.
- b) Either Jacqueline or you are likely to be chosen.
- c) Neither James nor I am eligible for this post.
- d) Neither Joshua nor you have been invited.

8. If two subjects connected by or or nor differ in number and person, the verb agrees with the nearer subject.

For example:

- a) Either a laboratory or classrooms are to be built.
- b) Either classrooms or a laboratory is to be built.
- c) Either the pupils or the teacher is responsible for the damage.
- d) Neither Jonathan nor his classmates have succeeded in solving the problem.

CHECK ANSWERS TO THE APPENDIX 1.0

THE ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE

TOPIC<sub>3</sub>

Voice is the grammatical term that shows the doer and the receiver of the action of the verb. A sentence can be changed from one voice to another. The following points should be followed when changing a sentence from active to passive voice:

1. The object of the active verb becomes the subject of the passive verb.

For example:

Active Voice : John kicked the ball.

Passive Voice : The ball was kicked by John.

2. The subject of the active verb becomes the object of “by” (the agent)

For example:

Active Voice : Mr. Kaphaizi teaches English.

Passive Voice : English is taught by Mr. Kaphaizi.

3. If the doer in the active voice is not specified, the passive form omits the preposition phrase (i.e. by + object).

For example:

Active Voice : Someone likes bananas.

Passive Voice : Bananas are liked.

4. The form of the verb is changed by using the same tense of the verb ‘to be’ with the past participle verb.

For Example:

ACTIVE VOICE

PASSIVE VOICE

QUESTION TAGS AND SHORT RESPONSES

T4

These are questions which are asked not because we need information but confirmation of what we already know. We want the person addressed to agree with us.

For example:

- a) Expecting the answer 'yes'
They like tea don't they?
- b) Expecting the answer 'no'
They don't like tea, do they?

So, Question tags are grammatical phrases in form of questions which are added to statements.

RULES WHICH ARE FOLLOWED WHEN FORMING QUESTION TAGS

1. When a statement is positive (affirmative), the question tag must be negative.

For example:

- a) Mrs. Brown is a doctor, isn't she?
- b) You can speak French, can't you?
- c) Your friends will come, won't they?

2. When the statement is negative, the question tag must be positive

For example:

- a) Mr. Mayani isn't a doctor, is he?
- b) You can't speak Latin, can you?
- c) Goats don't speak, do they?

NOTE: All auxiliary verbs in the statements are repeated in the question tags, except:

- a) Need and dare used positively in the statement are not repeated in the tag.

For example:

ALL-4-Academics

- a. We need to buy a new radio, don't we?
  - b. He dared to stroke the lion, didn't he?
- b) "Used to" is treated as a full verb rather than an auxiliary.
For example:
- a. He used to own a house, didn't he?
  - b. Jane used to borrow my pen, didn't she?
- c) There is no form 'amnt I?' instead we say aren't I?
For example:
- a. I am interested in your performance, aren't I?
  - b. I am better at tennis than he is, aren't I?
3. When the statements contain main verbs, the question tags take a 'do' 'does' or 'did' depending on the tense of the verb in the given statement.
- (a) When the statement contains a present tense singular main verb, the question tag takes 'does' for the third person singular.
For example:
- a. Jane likes soft drinks, doesn't she?
  - b. She passes every examination, doesn't she?
- (b) When the statement contains a past tense main verb, the question tag takes 'do'
For example:
- a. Jane and James like music, don't they?
  - b. The three girls pass every examination, didn't they?
- (c) When the statement contains a past tense main verb, the question tag takes 'do'
For example:
- a. Jane liked soft drinks, didn't she?
  - b. The three girls passed every examination, didn't they?
4. Statements which contain such words as 'scarcely', 'no', 'never', 'seldom', 'barely', 'nothing', 'no one' are treated as negatives and therefore take positive question tag.
For example:
- a. Nothing was said, was it?
  - b. No man is an island, is he?
  - c. I have never watched television, have I?
  - d. I seldom go there, do I?

ALL-4-Academics

- e. He rarely comes here, does he?
  - f. They barely escape from a lion, did they?
  - g. He has seen no one, has he?
5. An imperative can be made into less of a command and more of a request by the addition of affirmative tag in the future tense. All statements which show either a command or more of a request take the future tense marker 'will' and the personal pronoun 'you' in the question tag. This is because a command sounds negative (forcing matters)
For example:
- a. Pass me sugar, will you?
  - b. Open the window, will you?
  - c. Go out, will you?
6. All statements which start with 'lets' take the future tense marker 'shall' and the personal pronoun 'we' in the question tag.
For example;
1. Let's pray, shall we?
  2. Let's go home, shall we?
  3. Let's talk about AIDS, shall we?

Exercise

6. I need your love and care, _____?
7. Switch off the light, _____?
8. He mustn't come with us, _____?
9. The head teacher was student at this school, _____?

Short Responses

- A. Short responses to questions ending with question tags. It is normal to answer those questions briefly with a yes or no + subject + auxiliary verb. The short response echoes the question tag i.e. the auxiliary verb is repeated in the same tense.
1. A positive statement with a negative question tag normally expects Yes (Positive) answer.
For example:

ALL-4-Academics

- (a) Juliet has accepted my proposal, hasn't she? Yes, she has.
- (b) Romeo did come, didn't he? Yes, he did.
- (c) The Prince will pass the verdict, won't he? Yes, he will.

2. A negative statement with a positive question tag normally expects a No (Negative) answer.

For example:

- (a) You won't come, will you? No, I won't.
- (b) Romeo couldn't come, could he? No, he couldn't.
- (c) You haven't money, have you? No, I haven't.

- 4. I have never been to Mantua, _____?
- 5. I am early, _____?

Additions to statements

There are two types of additions to statements, namely:

- 1. Positive agreement.
- 2. Negative agreement.

1. POSITIVE AGREEMENT

Its pattern is So + Positive Auxiliary + Subject.

For example:

- (a) He likes coffee. So do I.
- (b) I have been studying hard. So has Ntolo.
- (c) Catherine can produce good results. So can Thoko.
- (d) Chola tried very hard to bring a change. So did Mchere.

2. NEGATIVE AGREEMENT

The pattern for negative agreement is 'Neither + Positive Auxiliary + Subject.'

For example:

- (a) I have no money. Neither has Bota.
- (b) Nambe doesn't like Mchere's behavior. Neither does Biti.
- (c) The party Secretary General could not do that. Neither could Dambo.

THE ORDER OF ADJECTIVES

T5

When we have a chain of adjectives qualifying one noun, the following table shows the pattern in which the adjectives should be ordered.

| Determiner | Opinion | Size | Age | Shape | Colour | Origin/Nationality | Material | Use or purpose | Noun |
|------------|---------|------|-----|-------|--------|--------------------|----------|----------------|------|
| D          | O       | S    | A   | S     | C      | O                  | M        | U              | N    |

From the table given above, it shows that given a noun with a chain of adjectives qualifying it:

- The adjectives which should come immediately before the noun is a purpose (use or classifying) adjective.
This is an adjective which singles out one particular thing out of many of the same.
For example, in hunting knife, 'hunting' is a classifying adjective because it singles one particular knife out of many knives like kitchen or eating knife.
- The adjective to come before the 'use' should be a noun adjective or adjective from materials.
For example, Chicken feed, Silk cloth, Pine tree, Golden ring.
- Then before these adjectives are those of origin.
These are adjectives like Malawian lady, Japanese car and American radio.
- Before adjectives of origin are those of colour.
Examples include red carpet, blue shirt, brown sugar.
- Before adjectives of colour come those of shape.
These are adjectives like circular, oval, square, rectangle among others.
- Before adjectives of shape come adjectives of age.
These include old, new, ancient and modern.

ALL-4-Academics

- g. Before this set of adjectives come adjectives of size.
These include big, small, tiny and huge.
Adjectives of weight also fall under the adjectives of size.
For example, heavy and light.
- h. Determiners come before adjectives of opinion.
These include the, some, a and an.

T8

Direct speech means the actual words of the speaker.

For example:

- (a) "I am learning English," he said.
- (b) "Have you ever seen a plane crash?" he asked. "No," I replied.
- (c) "I study English every morning," she said.
- (d) Couldn't she hear Jane say, "Under the table!"

Indirect speech is a report of what has been said. It is said by someone other than the speaker him/herself.

Changes which are involved when changing sentences from direct to indirect speech

A. VERBS

| Direct Speech      | Indirect Speech |                |               |
|--------------------|-----------------|----------------|---------------|
| Present Simple     | Past Simple     | Future Tense   | Future in the |
| Past               |                 |                |               |
| Present Continuous | Past Continuous | (Shall & Will) | (Should and   |
| Would)             |                 |                |               |
| Present Perfect    | Past Perfect    | Conditional    | Perfect       |
| Conditional        |                 |                |               |
| Past Simple        | Past Perfect    |                |               |

For example:

Direct Speech

1. "I write home every week."
  2. "I am watching television."
  3. "I have played the game."
  4. "I shall meet him in Blantyre."
  5. "I have been playing netball."
  6. "I wrote a letter to Jimmy."
  7. "I may be able to go."
  8. "If I had my book, I could find the answer."
- found the answer.

Indirect Speech

She said that:

- She wrote home every week.
- She was watching television.
- She had played the game.
- She would meet him in Blantyre.
- She had been playing netball.
- She had written a letter to Jimmy.
- She might be able to go.
- If she had her book, she could have

If the verb in the principle clause is in the present tense, present continuous tense, present perfect tense or future tense, the verb in the reported sentence will not change.

ALL-4-Academics

For example:

- Direct speech : "This work is too difficult."
Indirect speech : He says (that) this work is too difficult.
He is saying (that) this work is too difficult.
He has said (that) this work is too difficult.
He will say (that) this work is too difficult.

When the sentence expresses a fact that is supposed to be universally true and not merely applicable to the time when statement was made, the present tense may be used in reported speech.

For example:

- Direct speech : "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread," Pope said.
Indirect speech : Pope said that fools rush in where angels fear to tread.
Direct speech : "The sun is 92 million miles away."
Indirect speech : She said that the sun is 92 million miles away.

The present tense may be used also with a statement expressing a reported or habitual action.

- Direct speech : "I get up at seven O'clock every morning."
Indirect speech : He said that he gets up at seven O'clock every morning.
Direct speech : "My wife always drinks coffee for breakfast."

B. Change in Pronouns and Possessive Adjectives

These generally change as follows:

| Direct   |      | Indirect |  | Direct  |  | Indirect |  | Direct |  |
|----------|------|----------|--|---------|--|----------|--|--------|--|
| Indirect |      |          |  |         |  |          |  |        |  |
| I, Me    |      | He/She   |  | My      |  | His/Her  |  | Ours   |  |
| Theirs   |      |          |  |         |  |          |  |        |  |
| We       | They | Mine     |  | His/Her |  | Your     |  | Their  |  |
| Us       | Them | Our      |  | Their   |  | Yours    |  | Theirs |  |

C. Demonstrative Adjective Changes

| Direct | Indirect |
|--------|----------|
| This   | That     |
| These  | Those    |

For example:

- Direct speech : "I borrowed this pen from my brother," John said.
Indirect speech : John said that he borrowed that pen from his brother.
John said that he borrowed the pen from his brother.

| Ago                  | Before              | Yesterday              | The previous  |
| day/The day before   |                     |                        |               |
| Yesterday morning    | The morning before/ | Yesterday afternoon    | The afternoon |
| before/              |                     |                        |               |
|                      |                     |                        |               |
| The previous morning |                     | The previous afternoon |               |

For example:

- (a) “I am going home today,” said Jane.
Jane said that she was going home that day.
- (b) “I saw the boy here in this room today,” said Jenipher.
Jenipher said that she had seen the boy there, in that room that day.
- (c) “I will see these boys now.”
He said he would see those boys then.

E. Commands and Requests

Indirect commands and requests take the introductory verbs like “commanded,” “told,” “asked” or “requested.”

The verb in the direct speech becomes an infinitive with “to”

For example:

1. “Take the books to the office,” the clerk said to me.
The clerk told me to take the books to the office.
2. “Go away!”
He ordered him to go away.
3. “Do write to me as soon as you arrive.”
She asked him to write to her as soon as he arrived.
4. “Play the piano, please.”

ALL-4-Academics

He asked me to play the piano.

F. Exclamations

Exclamations take the introductory verb exclaimed. In order to express an exclamation in indirect speech, it is necessary to use an expression which will give the idea of the original.

For example:

1. "God gracious! I have never heard of such a thing," he said.
He was very surprised and said he had never heard of such a thing.
2. "What a beautiful house this is!" Exclaimed Luke.
Luke exclaimed what a beautiful house it was.
Luke exclaimed that the house was beautiful.
3. "How hot this day is!" Exclaimed the weatherman.
The weatherman lamented how hot that day was.
The weatherman exclaimed that it was a hot day.

G. Questions

Questions without interrogative pronouns take 'if' or 'whether' in their indirect form.

For example:

|          |                                                       |
|----------|-------------------------------------------------------|
| Direct   | "Why have you locked the door?" The teacher asked me. |
| Indirect | The teacher asked me why I had locked the door.       |
| Direct   | "Is Henry really working hard?"                       |
| Indirect | He asked (wondered) if Henry was really working hard. |
| Direct   | "Do you know me?" He asked the boy.                   |
| Indirect | He asked the boy if he knew him.                      |
| Direct   | "How did you do it?" He asked her.                    |
| Indirect | He asked her how she had done it.                     |

Exercise

2. Meaning 'the only one'

For example:

- a. The Bible, the Lord.
- b. The sun rises in the east and sets in the west.

3. Meaning the one we have just spoke about.

For example:

Once upon a time there was a little boy who lived in a cottage. The cottage was in the country and the boy had lived there all his life.

4. Before a noun which is followed by defining prepositional phrase.

For example:

- a. The road to Lilongwe
- b. The fourteenth of April
- c. The house with green shutters.

5. Before ordinals in titles.

For example:

Queen Elizabeth II (Queen Elizabeth the Second)

6. Before a common noun followed by a proper noun which identifies it.

For example:

The planet Mercury, the poet Jackson, the Play 'Romeo and Juliet'

Nouns expressing trades or professions often follow the proper noun; they are preceded by 'the'

For example"

Jackson the butcher, Mr Kaphaizi, the General Manager, Jane the doctor.

ALL-4-Academics

7. Before name of the country that is a union of smaller entities.

For example:

The United Kingdom, The USSR

Before the name of the country that is plural in form

For example:

The Netherlands, The United States of America

8. Before groups of Islands

For example:

The West Indies, The Hebrides, The Bahamas

9. Before the names of rivers, chains of mountains and oceans.

For example:

The Nile River, The Andes Mountains, The Atlantic Ocean

10. Before superlatives used attributively (to describe it)

For example:

This is the oldest building in Lilongwe

Sometimes before superlatives are used adverbially.

For example:

I like Shakespeare but it is modern drama that is interesting me the most.

11. Before adjectives used as nouns denoting a whole class.

For example:

The rich should help the poor.

TOPIC 10: THE CONDITIONAL TENSE AND CONDITIONAL SENTENCES

The distinction between should and would in the conditional tense is disappearing. Most people now use 'would' for all persons, although in pure English 'should' goes with 'I' and 'we'. The chief use of the conditional tense is in a main clause when a condition is made in a dependent clause or an infinitive phrase.

For example:

1. We would be able to start the game, if my brother came.
The first part is the main clause while the second one is a conditional clause
2. To leave school now is a mistake.
Infinitive phrase : "To leave school now."
Conditional clause : "Would be a mistake."

Sometimes the condition is understood and not expressed. A very common instance of this can be: "I would like to introduce our speaker." Here the words 'If I have your permission,' or 'If you allow me to,' are understood although they would never be expressed.

I would like, I should like and I would like are polite ways of saying I wish and can never be shortened to I like.

THE THREE KINDS OF CONDITIONS

a. Open or Likely Condition.

For example: If Dzozi goes to London, she will study law.

This implies that it is quite possible that Dzozi will go to London. This type uses the present tense in the conditional clause and future tense in the main clause

For example: He will come, if you wait.

b. Unlikely Condition

This uses the past simple tense in conditional tense in the main clause

For example:

1. He would come if you waited.
2. If Mwayi went to London, she would study.
This implies that Mwayi is unlikely to go London.

c. Unfulfilled or Rejected Condition

Contains past perfect tense in conditional clause and present conditional tense in the main clause

If Dzozi had gone to London, she would have studied

It implies that Dzozi did not go to London and did not study law.

This is purely hypothetical (bases on situations that have not yet happened, not on facts)

For example:

He would have come, if you had waited.

In the table below a description has been made on these tenses.

| Kind of Condition | Tense in Conditional Clause | Tense in Main Clause |
|-------------------|-----------------------------|----------------------|
| Open              | Present                     | Future               |
| Unlikely          | Past Simple                 | Conditional          |
| Rejected          | Past Perfect                | Perfect Conditional  |

A singular subject of a conditional clause can take 'were'

For example:

If he were ill, who would take his place?

Exercise

Change the infinitives in brackets to the most suitable tenses.

1. He (visit) the dentist if he had toothache.
2. If he gets married this year, he (need) a higher salary.
3. If the rains came early next year, there (be) a good harvest.
4. If the weather had been finer, the match _____ (take place)

THE PHRASE

A phrase is a group of related words which does not include a finite verb.

Examples:

1. My books are in the house.
2. The clothes hanging on the line are mine.
3. We have been friends since our youth.
4. Teachers are teaching large classes.

A phrase functions as a single part of speech in a sentence. However, each word within the phrase has a specific function in a sentence.

Types of Phrases

Phrases are identified according to the functions they perform in sentences. Although some phrases start with a preposition and end with a noun or pronoun (Prepositional phrases) they are usually identified as either adjective, adverb or noun phrases depending on the function they perform in a sentence.

For example:

1. The hat with a hole in it was thrown away. (With a hole is Qualifying noun 'hat')
2. The bus will arrive in the afternoon. (In the afternoon is modifying verb 'will arrive')

A. Adjectival Phrase

These do the work of an adjective by qualifying nouns in sentences.

For example:

2. They talked in a lovely manner.
3. He left the place in a hurry.
4. We waited for him before his arrival.
5. We have been friends since our youth.

C. Noun Phrase

A noun phrase does the work of a noun in a sentence. Although this group of related words may contain a participle or an infinitive, it is classified as a noun phrase according to the function they perform in a sentence.

For example:

1. Reading newspapers is one of John's hobbies.
Function: Subject of the verb is
2. To dance with you will be exciting.
Function: Subject of the verb "will be"
3. To come with you would be a pleasure.
Function: Subject of the verb 'would be'
4. Catching grasshoppers is fun for children
Function: Subject of the verb 'is'

D. Prepositional Phrase

A group of words which begins with a preposition and ends with a noun or pronoun, but which does not include a finite verb

For example:

1. The girl ran into the house.
2. I received a letter from my brother.
3. The uniform for the dance was bought in Blantyre.

It is called an adjective phrase when it does the work of an adjective and an adverb phrase when it does it does the work of an adverb.

E. Verbal Phrases

A verbal phrase is a group of related words that contains a participle, a gerund, or an infinitive.

For example:

1. Writing poems is my hobby. (Gerund Phrase)
2. We saw something floating in the water. (Participle Phrase)
3. I need something to wear to the dance. (An infinitive Phrase)

ALL-4-Academics

A verbal phrase is not a verb phrase. A verb phrase contains a main verb and one or more auxiliary verbs.

A. Infinitive Phrases

These can be used as noun phrases, adjective phrases or adverb phrases. Infinitive phrases as noun phrases in subject positions.

For example:

1. To remain free is our goal.
2. To succeed in life is his ambition.
3. To come with you would be a pleasure.

Infinitive phrases used as noun phrases in object positions

For example:

1. I would like to know the truth.
2. Malamulo wants to be a doctor.
3. The student wants to become a teacher.

Infinitive phrases used as noun phrases in apposition to a noun.

For example:

1. Your desire to help James is a good thing.
2. Her request to serve the country was granted.
3. His ambition to become a doctor will soon be realized.

Here the infinitive phrases, functioning as noun phrases, refer to the same thing as the nouns beside which they have been placed. They are in apposition to the nouns which precede them.

Infinitive phrases used as adjectives.

For example:

1. This is the way to draw a picture.
2. He gave me money to spend freely.
3. His ability to play a fast game was limited.

Infinitive phrases used as adverbs

For example:

SENTENCES AND CLAUSES

A sentence is a group of words which includes a finite verb and expresses a complete thought.

For example:

1. Go home now.
2. Our dog barked throughout the night.

TYPES OF SENTENCES

A. Simple Sentences

A simple sentence is a group of words which includes one finite verb and expresses a complete thought. This thought can be a statement, a question, a command or an exclamation.

For example:

1. Take all your clothes. (command)
2. How I wish I could go with you. (exclamation)

B. Compound Sentences

A compound sentence is one which contains two main clauses (Sentences)

For example:

3. The tea was cold but he enjoyed drinking it.
4. She collected her books and put on her coat.
5. You must pay the fare or you can not travel by this bus.

C. Multiple Sentences

A multiple sentence is a compound sentence which contains three or more main clauses.

For example:

1. I picked up my suitcase, put on my hat and walked away.
2. The pupils got their books, locked the desks and ran to the laboratory.
3. John swept the floor and Jane washed the plates but Joseph just sat there.
4. The secretary put away the files, locked the filing cabinet and left the office.

NB: A multiple sentence is a type of compound sentence.

D. Complex Sentences

A complex sentence is the one which has one main clause and one or more subordinate clauses. A subordinate clause is the one that cannot stand alone. It depends on the rest of the sentence for its meaning.

For example:

1. This is the man whom you met yesterday.
2. The news that he had drowned shocked everyone.

ALL-4-Academics

3. Although he was ill, he decided to keep his appointment.
4. I shall spend this evening with you unless you have made arrangements to go out.

Exercise

1. Did you like the house which I built?
2. Blantyre is a city which fascinates me.
3. The runner whose shoe came off finished last.
4. I eventually found the purse where I had hidden it.
5. Since they have all left, let us complete the work ourselves.

TYPES OF SUBORDINATE CLAUSES

There are three types of subordinate clauses namely:

- a. Adjective clause
- b. Noun Clause
- c. Adverbial Clause

1. ADJECTIVE CLAUSES

This is a group of words which does the work of an adjective by qualifying a noun in a sentence. The noun being qualified is called an antecedent. An adjective clause is normally introduced by a relative pronoun such as who, whom, which, why, where, when and that. It answers the question Which?

For example:

1. The shirt that you bought is torn.
2. The book which you lent me was interesting.
3. Thank you for the help that you have given me.

NOTE: Sometimes the relative pronouns can be omitted but the subordinate adjective clauses can still be understood. This is when the relative pronoun stands in place of an object.

For example:

1. The book I want is on the table.
Function: It qualifies noun 'book'
2. The man you sent to me has run away.
Function: It qualifies noun 'man'
3. The man you spoke to is my brother.
Function: It qualifies noun 'man'

TYPES OF SUBORDINATE ADJECTIVE CLAUSES

1. Defining Adjective Clauses
2. Non-defining Adjective Clauses

A. The Defining Adjective Clause

It is the one which tells precisely who or what the noun is. This is a clause which when removed from the sentence; the sentence does not make perfect sense.

For example:

1. I have read the book which he wrote.
2. The boy who is in the house is a thief.
3. This is the girl who has come out with a distinction.

B. The Non-Defining Adjective Clause

These are clauses that are not very important to the words they qualify. They merely give additional information or a mere remark. They are normally separated from the rest of the sentence by the use of commas.

For example:

1. My father, who came last week, is a great man.
2. The book, which I bought last week, has proved to be useless.
3. Mr. Kaphaizi, who was here a few hours ago, was once a driver.

Even if this clause is removed, the sentence still has definite meaning and makes a complete sense.

2. NOUN CLAUSES

A Noun Clause is the one which does the work of a noun. It answers the question what? It performs a number of functions in sentences. There are five functions which a noun clause performs in a sentence. A noun clause may be:

a. Subject of a Verb

A noun clause functions as a subject of a verb when it occurs before a principal clause. It always precedes its main clause.

For example;

1. What he said bored everybody.
2. What you are doing seems very difficult.
3. That he will refuse the offer is very unlikely.
4. Whoever answered that question should have been intelligent.

b. Object of the Verb

ALL-4-Academics

A noun clause functions as the object of a verb when it occurs after the principal clause.

The verb in the main clause is an action verb. Noun clause which is object of a verb may be:

(a) A statement direct or indirect

For example:

1. He said “where do you live?”
2. He told me that the debt had been paid.

(b) A question, direct or indirect

For example:

1. He asked me where I lived.
2. He said, “Where do you leave?”
3. Can you tell me what the time is?

c. The object of the Preposition

A noun clause functions as the object of a preposition governed by a preposition when it occurs immediately after the preposition.

For example:

1. You can have this for what I paid for it.
2. The head teacher was pleased with what he said.
3. They will be very thankful for whatever you can give them.
4. The student always pays attention to whatever the teacher is saying.

d. The Complement of a Verb

A noun clause functions as a complement of a verb if it completes the meaning to the state or linking verb. The verb does not make complete sense without the clause.

For example:

- a. This is what I want.
Function: Complement of the verb ‘is’
- b. It appears it will rain.
Function: Complement of the verb ‘appears’
- c. The fact is that he doesn’t really try.
Function: complement of the verb ‘is’
- d. It seems that Juliet has never been in love before.
Function: Complement of the verb ‘seems’
- e. The winner will be whoever scores highest points.
Function: Complement of the verb ‘will be’

f. In apposition to a noun

A noun clause performs this function when it explains more about a noun to give further information. Usually the noun appositioned is an abstract noun.

For example:

ALL-4-Academics

- a. The rumour that she had passed pleased us.
Function: In apposition to noun 'rumour'
- b. The fact that the prisoner was guilty was plain to everyone.
Function: In apposition to noun 'fact'

- (a) This is what I like.
- (b) What you know is not true.
- (c) She knew what the time was.
- (d) I know he escaped from prison.
- (e) I now realise that he cheated me.
- (f) James laughed at what Peter said.
- (g) It seems that he had gone already.
- (h) Why he came late is a mystery to us.
- (i) That Thoko and Agness are sisters is obvious.
- (j) The news that Khanyizira school lack teachers is false.

4. ADVERBIAL CLAUSES

Adverbial clauses do the work of adverbs in sentences. They modify verbs, adjectives or other adverbs. They are introduced by such words such as when, where, while, as, after, before, until, if, unless, because, since, so, that, although, than, provided that, supposing that and as if. There are nine types of adverbial clauses and these are:

a. Adverbial Clause of Time.

These modify verbs in sentences. They tell when an action was done and are introduced by words such as when, until, after, before, since, as, while, and as soon as.

ANSWERS APPENDIX 3.0

TOPIC 13: MEANING OF SENTENCES

This is not a guessing game. There are certain clues which are followed:

- a. Using double negatives.
- b. Using contextual clues.
- c. Using sentence patterns (conditional and concessions)

A. Interpreting Sentences Using Double Meanings

If a sentence has two negatives, it implies a positive idea.

Examples:

1. She did not say, she did not do it. This means that:
  - a. She said she did it.
  - b. She said something but did not do it.
  - c. She said nothing but did it.
  - d. She said nothing but did it.
